X-CTU with Linux

X-CTU is the utility to use for setting up an Xbee. What the acronym stands for is a mystery. What isn't a mystery is that it's a Windows app.

From Digi's Knowledge Base:

X-CTU is a Windows-based application provided by Digi. This program was designed to interact with the firmware files found on Digi's RF products and to provide a simple-to-use graphical user interface to them.

X-CTU operates strictly for Windows Platforms. The versions of Windows which are compatible with
